MRS. WILHELMINA R. LUCIFER.

A Sailor and an Actress. "When I was a poor girl," said the Duchess of St. Albans, "working very hard for my thirty shillings a week, I went down to Liverpool during the holidays, where I was always kindly received. I was to perform a new piece, something like those affecting little dramas they get up at our minor theatres; and in my character I represented a poor friendless orphan girl, reduced to the most wretched. A heartless tradesman prosecutes the sad heroine for a heavy debt, and insists on putting her in prison, unless some one will be bail for her. The girl replies, 'Then I have no hope. I have not a friend in the world.' 'What! will no one be bail for you, to save you from prison?' asks the creditor. 'I have told you I have not a friend on earth,' was my reply. But just as I was uttering the words, I saw a sailor in the upper gallery springing over the railing, letting himself down from one tier to another, until he bounded clear over the orchestra and footlights, and placed himself beside me in a moment. 'Yes, you shall have one friend, at least, my poor young woman,' said he, with the gravest expression in his honest, sunburnt countenance. 'I will go bail for you to any amount. And as for you, (turn-ing to the frightened actor.) if you don't bear it will be worse for you when I come athwart your bows!' Every creature in the house rose; the uproar was indescribable; peals of laughter, screams of terror, cheers from his tawny messmates in the gallery, preparatory scrapings of the violins from the orchestra, and amidst the universal din, there stood the unconscious cause of it, sheltering me, 'the poor, distressed young woman,' and breathing defiance and destruction against my mimic persecutor. He was only persuaded to relinquish his care of me by the manager pretending to arrive and rescue me with a profusion of theatrical bank-notes."
